NEW MARGATE VICAR

REV. K. PERCIVAL SMITH'S APPOINTMENT

Vicar of St. Peter's from 1930 until 1938, the Rev. Kenneth Percival Smith has accepted the living of St. John the Baptist, Margate.

He succeeds the Rev. D. V. Beckingham, who leaves this week to become Vicar of St. Mary's, Folkestone.

At St. Peter's Mr. Percival Smith succeeded the Rev. C. H. S. Matthews and during his last two years at the village was rural dean. When he left for Croydon in April, 1938, the esteem in which he was held by the parishioners was evidenced as the farewell gathering, when he was presented with a cheque for £153. A gold wristlet watch was also given to Mrs. Smith. Mr. Smith took great interest in the British Legion, Toc H and youth movements.

He was educated at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, obtained his B.A. degree in 1910 and his M.A. five years later. Ordained in 1909, he held his first appointment as curate at Croydon, went to Ashford, Kent, as curate after four years and in 1927 became vicar at St. Philip's, Lambeth, from where he came to St. Peter's.

Serving with the 5th Northants in the last war, he held the rank of captain and was awarded the Military Cross in 1919.

Mr. Beckingham had been chaplain of Margate A.T.C. since its inception and at an informal parade of the squadron last week he was presented with a piece of silver plate. The presentation was made by Flt./Sgt. E. Lawrence, who thanked Mr. Beckingham for all he had done for the N.C.Os. and cadets in both work and play.

The resignation of Mr. Beckingham was received with regret at last week's meeting of Margate Education Committee.

AIR BATTLE AT DIEPPE

AWARD TO RAMSGATE OFFICER

A 21-year-old R.A.F. officer who was born at Ramsgate, has been awarded the D.F.C. for a courageous feat during the combined Allied operations at Dieppe on 19th August.

He is Plt./Off. Denis Sloan, of No. 614 Squadron, whose home is now at Hull.

During the operations he was the rear-gunner of the leading aircraft of a formation of five detailed to lay a smoke-screen at Dieppe. While the planes were over the target area intense light anti-aircraft fire was encountered and as the machines were being flown in line astern at a height of only 50ft., it was difficult for the pilot to take avoiding action.

In spite of this Plt./Off. Sloan, skilfully handling his guns, fired continuously and effectively, and thus prevented the following aircraft from becoming another target for the enemy's anti-aircraft gunners.

Plt./Off. Sloan served as a flight/sergeant in the R.A.F.V.R. and was commissioned in May this year.

FOOD OFFICIAL'S DEATH

TRAGEDY IN GAS-FILLED OFFICE

Ministry of Food slaughterhouse manager for the Ramsgate and Ash areas, Mr. Norman Claude Field, aged 34, of Chequers-lane, Ash, was found dead in his gas-filled office at Ramsgate on Monday morning.

Mr. Field left his home at nine o'clock on Sunday morning.

At 7.15 a.m. on Monday Mr. Cyril Danton visited the slaughterhouse in Winstanley-crescent and going to the office found Mr. Field lying dead. Gas was escaping from a pipe.

Mr. Field leaves a widow and two young children.

An inquest will be held by Ramsgate Borough Coroner (Mr. J. H. Robinson) to-morrow (Wednesday).

SOME GOOSEBERRIES!

RAMSGATE FRUITERER FINED FOR OVERCHARGING

What are dessert gooseberries? The official answer, supplied at Ramsgate police court on Monday, is that they are yellow, hairless, and weigh not less than half an ounce each.

John Frederick Turner, fruiterer, of the Market-place, Ramsgate, who was summoned for selling gooseberries at a price in excess of the maximum laid down by the Ministry of Food on 29th July, told the magistrates he had been in business for 30 years but he had never seen a gooseberry weighing half an ounce.

There was a second summons against defendant for selling cherry plums at a price in excess of the maximum on 10th August.

Mr. G. H. Edwards, who prosecuted on behalf of the Food Control Enforcement Sub-Committee, said defendant sold some gooseberries at 6d. a pound. Under the Soft Fruit (Maximum Prices) Order, gooseberries were in two categories—dessert gooseberries, which the maximum price was 5d. per pound, and gooseberries of other types 5d. per pound. Dessert gooseberries were defined as being "yellow, hairless and weighing not less than half an ounce each." The gooseberries sold by defendant did not come up to these requirements.

Miss Janis Turner, a clerk at the Food Office, gave evidence of making purchases. She saw gooseberries marked up at 6d. and 1s. a pound. She asked which were dessert gooseberries and defendant said both were. She bought a pound of 6d. gooseberries.

Ten to Make Two Ounces.

Frank Brown, Enforcement Inspector to the Ministry of Food, said defendant told him he sold the gooseberries as dessert as they were yellow and hairless. Witness pointed out that in addition they must weigh not less than half an ounce each. Witness weighed some of the gooseberries and it took ten to make two ounces. When witness drew defendant's attention to this he said witness picked out the little ones. Defendant declined to weigh them himself and suggested witness should weigh some from a bag. Witness did so and it took 14 to make two ounces.

Continuing, witness said defendant was also showing gooseberries marked at 1s. a pound. When these were weighed it took eight to make two ounces.

Defendant denied that he had gooseberries marked up at 1s. He said he had them marked up at 1s. 6d. and 8d. For 40 years he had been selling the 6d. and 8d. variety as dessert.

In the case of the cherry plums, Mr. Edwards stated that they were sold at 8d. whereas the maximum price was 5d. The sale was made by defendant's daughter.

Defendant said he had a 5d. price ticket in the basket but it must have fallen off, leaving the 8d. ticket exposed. As his daughter did not know the prices she sold the cherry plums at 8d. a pound.

Defendant was fined £1 on each summons and ordered to pay £1 1s. advocate's fee.

MORE PAY FOR TEACHERS

A new scale of war allowances to teachers as from 1st July has been approved by Margate Education Committee.

It will have the effect of giving the teachers increases ranging from £16 to £23 a year. The new scale is as follows: teachers over 21 receiving salaries up to £262 10s. a year, men £45 (previously £26), women £36 (£19 10s.); salaries of over £262 10s. a year, men £35 (£13), women £28 (£10 8s.). The allowances for teachers under 21 will be—men £26, women £19 10s.

A FIFTH YEAR OF OFFICE

ALDERMAN KEMPE TO RETAIN MAYORALTY

TWO-HOUR PRIVATE MEETING

At a private meeting of the members of Ramsgate Town Council on Friday, at which there was a very free expression of opinion, it was decided to nominate the present Mayor (Alderman A. B C. Kempe) for a fifth year of office.

The actual election of the Mayor takes place on 9th November but it is customary to hold an informal meeting beforehand and the decision then arrived at is almost invariably confirmed at the November meeting.

The re-election of Alderman Kempe was moved by Councillor W. G. Love and seconded by Councillor J. B. Butler.

There was a second nomination—that of Alderman W. Hawkins. This nomination was made by Alderman C. R. Woodhams and seconded by Alderman A. E. Petley.

The meeting lasted two hours and when the vote was taken 16 voted for Alderman Kempe and 10 for Alderman Hawkins.

It is understood that there was one non-voter.

Alderman Kempe, who has already broken a number of records, will be setting up another record by being elected mayor for the fifth consecutive year.

The country was plunged into war during the first year of Alderman Kempe's mayoralty and the duties have been more arduous since than any mayor has had to face since the incorporation of the borough.

The firm line Alderman Kempe has taken on several occasions has not made him popular in certain quarters but the unusual and difficult circumstances in which the town finds itself no doubt influenced the majority in favour of extending for a further year, which it is hoped will see the climax of the war, the term of office of the present mayor.

Alderman Kempe was elected to the Council in 1933 and two years later was elevated to the aldermanic bench.

As chairman of the Sands and Entertainments Committee, both before and after his election to the mayoralty, he was instrumental in gaining for the town considerable publicity up and down the country and Ramsgate was undoubtedly on the "crest of the wave" at the time of the crises which eventually led to the war.

POST OFFICE HOURS

As from Monday, 5th October, the head Post Office at Ramsgate and the branch office at Broadway, Broadstairs, will be closed at 6 p.m.

DAYLIGHT RAIDER

BOMBS ON COAST TOWN

SLIGHT CASUALTIES ONLY

A horse was the only fatal casualty when a lone enemy raider swooped from the clouds and dropped four high explosive bombs on the outskirts of a south-east coast town on Monday morning.

Some damage was caused but only five persons sustained slight injuries and they were able to return home after treatment at a first aid depot.

Several cows grazing in a field were cut by bomb splinters.

The main area of damage was confined to a garage and surrounding outbuildings. A bomb which fell within a few yards of the building demolished one end and part of the roof caved in.

Houses in the vicinity were damaged chiefly by blast but this was confined to windows and tiles.

Mr. W. Hiller had a lucky escape when he was blown several yards by blast. He was standing at the rear of the garage when a bomb fell, and looking up he saw bricks and rubble falling. Suddenly the blast caught him and he was blown several yards but fortunately escaped injury.

One bomb which fell at the rear of a farm killed a horse but otherwise caused no damage. Cows which were in the vicinity were noticed to be cut by bomb splinters when they were milked later in the day.

One of the people who witnessed the bombs falling from the plane was Mr. A. E. Bendall, who received a slight knee injury. Despite this he rushed forward to see if anyone had been trapped beneath the debris.

Mr. W. Baldwin sustained concussion, while Mr. J. Crisp, Mr. R. Hunt and Mr. D. West suffered from head wounds and shock.

FOUR SUMMONSES

SEQUEL TO WOMAN'S VISIT TO RAMSGATE

Four summonses arising from the visit to Ramsgate of a young woman from Northants were down for hearing at Ramsgate police court on Monday.

Marjorie Eva Rose Pateanall, aged 19, described as a railway carriage cleaner, of Ashfield-road, Wellingborough, Northants, was summoned for failing to produce her identity card at Wellingborough police station as requested, for unlawfully using the name of Marjorie Henderson, and for entering Ramsgate for the purpose of pleasure on 2nd August.

Brinley Edward Williams, aged 32, labourer, of Queen Alexandra-road, Bedford, was summoned for aiding and abetting in the latter offence.

The Magistrates' Clerk (Mr. E. A. Knight) read a letter from the woman in Northants which she said she had not been able to work for over a month owing to the health of her 12-months old baby.

The Chairman (Mr. H. J. Perry) said the magistrates felt it was necessary that both defendants should attend court.

The Chief Constable (Mr. S. F. Butler) said he had present in court two witnesses—one from Wellingborough and one from Bedford. The expense of bringing them down again would be heavy. At the moment the expenses were £3 14s. 10d. and if they had to come down again it would be doubled.

The Chairman said the decision of the magistrates was that the case would be adjourned to 9th October. An intimation would be given to defendants that if they did not attend a warrant for their arrest would be issued.

Retiring from work on the railroad in 1937, he was awarded a gold medal for 25 years' service.

CUNNER'S DRINKS

SHOULD THANK POLICE FOR ARRESTING HIM

"He may be grateful to the police for picking him up and preventing him from smashing up his own home," said the Chief Constable (Mr. S. F. Butler) at Ramsgate police court on Monday when Gnr. Norman Alvin Supple, R.A., aged 21, pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly in Packer's-lane on Thursday afternoon.

P/S Files said that at 2.45 p.m. he went to Elizabeth-cottages. Packer's-lane where he saw defendant, who was dressed in civilian clothes. He was drunk and was using obscene language. Witness told him to go indoors but he refused and continued to use obscene language. Defendant adopted a fighting attitude so with the assistance of W/R Coleman witness brought defendant to the police station.

The officer said that on the way to the station W/R Coleman received an injury to the thumb and as a result he had to go off duty.

"I was on leave. That is all I can say," said defendant, when asked if he wished to offer any explanation for his conduct.

The officer from defendant's unit said he had not previously given any trouble.

Defendant was fined 10s.

DEVOTION TO DUTY

RAMSGATE MAN MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES

Mr. Douglas E. T. Wrenn, formerly of 10 Penshurst-road, Ramsgate, has been mentioned in despatches for devotion to duty in the Middle East.

He is serving as a senior operator in the Royal Corps of Signals and the mention, it is understood, is in connection with his work as a signaller in a tank in action.

Some time ago his mother, who now lives at Reading, received information that he was missing but a week afterwards learnt that he was safe. Her latest letter from him states that he is resting in Cairo.

Douglas, whose father, Mr. E. M. Wrenn, secretary of the Ramsgate Cricket League, passed away in April last year, is well-known among Thanet cycling enthusiasts and in peace-time he toured several Continental countries on his cycle. Together with a fellow member of the Margate Cycling Club, Mr. H. Miles, of Westwood, he spent a cycling holiday in Germany, Italy and Switzerland at the end of August, 1939. The two men were in Munich when Germany marched into Poland on 1st September and, travelling by train via Cologne, they managed to get over the frontier into Belgium less than 10 hours before England's declaration of war.

Mr. Wrenn joined up early in the war and prior to that was employed at Messrs. Lane's printing works, Broadstairs.

UNPUBLISHED STORY

'EPIC DAYS RECALLED AT KING'S

The tremendous days of August-September, 1940, when the Battle of Britain was at its height, provides the background for "Unpublished Story," which heads the bill at the King's Theatre, Ramsgate, to-day and to-morrow.

The plot centres on two newspaper reporters, played by Richard Greene and Valerie Hobson. Greene discovers a so-called "peace organisation," which is suspected of being used by the Nazis as a mask for their fifth column activities. His investigation begins on the Battle of Britain at its height and continues through the subsequent months of the London Outside-the scenes include the reconstruction of the great fire at the London docks on the night of the first big Nazi raid on the capital, and a reconstruction of Vyvian Ellis's home which not only is shown the moving scenes of the return of the R.A.F. from Dunkirk but a rounding up of Nazi spies. "Cadets on Parade," with Freddie Hartzhouser and Jimmy Lydon, is also being shown.

Chief feature for the latter part of the week is "Two Latins from Manhattan," an uproarious new "musical" with Jean Davis, Jinx Falkenburg and Joan Woodbury have the leading roles in a story which deals with the adventures of a Broadway show girls impersonating a South American dancing team. The music of the film, consisting mainly of torrid, rhythmical South American songs, is further highlighted by a special rendition of "Daddy," delivered with plenty of "whams." Dick Foran and Paul Kelly head the cast of "Mystery Ship," which will also be shown.

BICYCLE MADE FOR ONE

Olaf Germaine, of Prestedge-avenue, Ramsgate, and Edmund Antony, of Oaten-hill, Canterbury, were fined 5s. each at Margate police court on Wednesday for riding together on a cycle which was constructed to carry not more than one person.

P.C. Warren said that he saw Germaine riding a tradesman's cycle down St. Peter's-road with Antony sitting on the carrier. When stopped Germaine said "Ramsgate police told me it was all right," and when witness asked him who the policeman was he replied "Well, they did not actually tell me, but they did not make any objection."

Germaine added that they were working further up the road and as they had only half an hour for dinner it saved time to give Antony a ride.

IN TOBRUK RAID

ST. PETER'S SAILOR MISSING

On Tuesday morning Mrs. Jennings, of 3 Victoria-avenue, Northdown, St. Peter's, received two letters.

One was from the Admiralty, stating that her son, First Class Stkr. Charles William Jennings, R.N., was among the men reported missing from the destroyer Sikh, which was sunk in the recent operations at Tobruk.

The second letter, dated 4th September, which was before the Tobruk raid, was from her son.

Twenty-three years ago, Stkr. Jennings attended Holy Trinity and the Central Schools, Margate, and was afterwards employed at a printing works.

He joined the Royal Navy in 1938 and served on the mine-sweeper Kellett, which helped to evacuate men of the B.E.F. from Dunkirk. Kellett landed some of the survivors at Margate.

When home on leave early in January, Stkr. Jennings was married at Canterbury with his fiancee on the night of the blitz. The house was burnt out and Stkr. Jennings lost all his clothes.

Shortly afterwards he went to the Mediterranean and was posted to the Sikh last month.

A FLOP

BOARD OF EDUCATION BACK A LOSER

The Board of Education have discovered what any child could have told them—that children prefer to spend their holidays away from school and the supervision of their teachers.

In July the Board sent a circular to education authorities asking them to make plans for the care of children during the school holiday period.

Most authorities carried out the suggestions of the Board but the result was a "flop."

At Ramsgate the Education Committee approved proposals for the continuance of school meals at Hereson and Ellington British Restaurants, the provision of milk for the children at five school centres and the opening of the Newington playing field and a number of school playgrounds for use by the children. Supervision of meals and the distribution of milk was undertaken by the teachers.

The results of the effort was described by the chairman, (Alderman W. H. Smith) at a meeting of the Education Committee on Wednesday.

Alderman Smith said although the committee did their bit the facilities provided were apparently not wanted. Milk was supplied to less than 10 per cent. and meals less than 5 per cent. of the whole of the children on the schools roll. He understood that experiences were much the same in other parts of the country.

Mr. W. A. Davies said they had a similar experience in Staffordshire. They were asked to make plans for the continuance in some form of the school meals service but the result was generally the whole thing had been a "flop. The teachers attended at the schools but the last century and the part of the children was very weak indeed. Most authorities, Staffordshire among them, were sincerely to carry out the wishes of the Board but it was definitely a failure.

JUNGLE BOOK

SABU AT THE ODEON

After months of painstaking preparation and research, Alexander Korda has produced on the screen a technicolour Rudyard Kipling's famous "Jungle Book," which is being shown at the Odeon Cinema, Ramsgate, to-day and to-morrow.

Sabu is starred in the role of Mowgli and opposite him is Patricia O'Rourke. The story of the exploits of the young boy who was raised by jungle wild animals and returned to his native village after 12 years to learn again the ways of man is followed by many children, and a great many adults. The background is picturesque Northern India during the last century and the production entailed the creation of scenes of unbounded jungle, teeming filled with wild animals and tropical bird life, as well as scenes of fantastic splendour completely out of the realm of "Jungle Book" should not be missed. Also being shown is "Sabotage at Sea," with Dave Hutcheson.

"Reap the Wild Wind," which heads the bill for the latter part of the week, presents a great trio of public favourites in Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne. Ray Milland is one of the most popular leading men in Hollywood pictures. Wayne, in a melodrama of a hundred years ago, he is one half of the romantic duo and down facing Paulette Goddard. The other half is John Wayne, as a dashing sea dog home from China in a ship laden with silks and spices. Storms, wrecks, fights and the constant battle of man against the elements make for an edge-of-the-seat story.

VICKERY—SMITH

ST. LAWRENCE WEDDING

Miss Ellen Rose Mary Smith, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, of Whitehall-road, Ramsgate, was married at St. Lawrence Church last week to Cpl. William Ivor Vickery, R.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vickery and the late Mr. Vickery, of Swansea.

The bride was given away by her father. She was dressed in white and figured satin with veil and orange blossom, carrying a bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by the bridesmaid Miss Doris Williams (cousin of the bridegroom), who was dressed in a dress of pink satin, covered with pink net, a headdress of silver leaves and a pink veil. Her bouquet was of cream roses and mauve scabious.

The Vicar (the Rev. J. H. Roundhill) conducted the service. Mr. Hubert Vickery (brother of the bridegroom) was best man and Miss Irene Young was "The Wedding" sister of Ellen."

Following a reception at St. Benedict's Hall, Newington, the couple left for their honeymoon in Swansea. The bride travelling in a maroon dress, with accessories to match and a grey coat.

Their presents numbered over 50 and Master Jack Thorpe (step-brother of the bridegroom), who acted as page, gave the bride a silver horseshoe.

THIS WEEK'S SHORT STORY

STANDING ROOM ONLY

BY

KESTON CLARKE

Everybody bolted. Within a few seconds the West End shopping street was as forsaken as the Valley of the Kings.

It wasn't an earthquake alarm or the rumour of some galloping epidemic. It was just that a big cloud, sailing majestically across a blue sky, had stopped suddenly straight overhead, and proceeded to empty itself in a squeezed sponge.

The street was forsaken; but not the shop doorways. They were packed with sheltering groups, all dressed as one would expect to dress on an August afternoon.

The young man attired in the stylish gent's grey lightweight was caught exactly in the middle of the road. He looked around wildly. Then he began to sprint towards a red blur that occupied the angle of an L-shaped office front.

At the same moment a young lady, neatly encased in a new costume the shade of aubergine, grey, spotted the red blur from an almost equal distance. She sprinted too.

And a moment or two later the public telephone kiosk, property of His Majesty's Government and under the administration of His Majesty's Postmaster General, was the scene of a short but decisive struggle between two citizens (the term "citizenness" is mercifully outmoded) neither of whom intended to use the structure for its legitimate purpose.

At any other time the young man would have stood respectfully aside, wearing the polite smile with which men conceal the dumb suffering they endure while waiting for a woman to finish with the phone. But Sir Lancelot himself wouldn't have exposed his chivalrous ideals to the cool deluge. Such things tarnish so easily.

"I was here first, I think," she stated, in a tone of frigid civility.

"I rather gathered," replied the young man, urbanely, "that it was a deshoo. Or possibly" — and he waved towards the score of faces peering from a nearby arcade—"you'd like to lodge an appeal at the judges' box?"

She'd been brought up not to sniff; but she made the appropriate grimace and remarked:

"You might shut the door after you, anyway."

"I might, if you'd do something with that enormous bunch of flowers and coffee-stains—and let me come right in."

This was completely unreasonable, as the young lady curtly pointed out; because the young man's entrance was impeded mainly by a large parcel closely covered with a blue cloth, which he was trying to bring in with him.

"Anyway," he urged, "you could stuff those carnations into the parcels thing, and balance the dress-box on your head. Then I could follow suit, and generally the whole thing had been a "flop. The teachers attended at the schools but the last century and the part of the children was very weak indeed. Most authorities, Staffordshire among them, were sincerely to carry out the wishes of the Board but it was definitely a failure.

"Oh? But—"

"If you want to know," she announced, firmly. "I came in here to telephone."

"Go on, then!"

She hesitated. And he remarked, pleasantly, "I can suggest some very charming numbers. There's Parkside 1104. That's Sam Braggs, who'll fillet you a nice plaice and send it round in two minutes flat. Or Tuxworth 8452. That's Jeakes, Jeakes, Wringem and Jeakes, my solicitors: a very shady lot, but awfully well-connected——"

"With a look of determination the young lady brought out some copper coin of the realm, entered the kiosk herself to the phone. The call went through promptly. "Oh—that Mary? Look, darling, I've caught a perfect peach sheltering in the Exbury-street phone box; only there's a very unpleasant young man who's been annoying me out because he wants to ring up his wife. Will you find a taxi and pick me up? I'm simply——

Splendid, 'Bye."

She then glanced scornfully at the young man, who returned a look of infinite reproach.

Most uncalled-for. In the first place I haven't a wife; and if I had the kind of wife I would have if I had a wife I wouldn't do my utmost to make a soulless tradesman; and in the second place the rain's stopping; and in the third place——

The Third Factor.

The third factor was supplied by something much more dramatic than the young man had in mind. For a taxi, in fact, pulled up quickly on the swimming tarmac, swooped sideways against the kerb and overturned just outside the phone box. The driver and mate, unhurt, scrambled out grinning ruefully.

Missed a fine chance," observed the young man in grey.

The girl gathered up her flowers and dress-box. "I'll let you please let me pass——"

"I will; but the lorry won't. It's come over on the door, don't you see? And I don't think even the most—er—modern figure could climb through a five-inch opening. So much for Mary and her taxi——"

She gasped; and her manner softened. Any new predicament—for which the young man could not possibly be blamed. "What on earth shall we do? I've got an important business appointment in 20 minutes."

Meanwhile, the lorry couldn't have chosen a more fortunate place and time for staging its performance. The stormcloud had sailed on and the people in the doorways were ready for something else at which to gape. They surrounded the scene ten deep, while the mate pushed through to find a usable telephone the driver consoled amicably with a policeman.

The word went quickly round that two people—a young chap and a young woman—were imprisoned in a telephone box. Trapped! It sounded like something that might turn up later in a headline. The nearest ranks of the crowd stared in, with relish; and the two prisoners stared calmly out.

The young man thought of something, and drew her attention back to the phone. "Your appointment," he reminded her. "The phone is a handy device. I believe, for unmaking dates——"

"No good. It's with Ralph Otway, the film casting director; and they say he never takes the slightest notice of calls. If you can't catch him personally you're sunk. They tell me he's awful——"

"But if you've actually an appointment——?"

She smiled rather unhappily. "I was going to try and cram in Mary's—she's in the office—was to help; but he's leaving for Cornwall at five——"

The faces of the driver and the policeman and the mate appeared in a queer vertical row at the five-inch opening. Everything possible was being done, they explained in turn and in chorus; but the lorry was heavy and the kiosk was a breakdown outfit to hand and it might be a couple of hours and could you manage to stick it out——"

"Sure!" said the young man in grey. "We're doing fine. Cheerful companionship, plenty of fun and games, and"—he indicated the phone directories—"and up-to-date library of highly useful information. Only the grub's a bit poor."

This jocular remark was interpreted by those who heard it as signifying that Couple Trapped in Phone Box the aim was 200,000 by June. Recruiting since then has been enormously increased.

Anxious Days.

Switch back to the day the A.T.S. was born. On 27th September, 1938, the War Office announced the formation of a women's auxiliary territorial Service. Two days later Mr. Neville Chamberlain flew to Munich.

In those anxious days I watched the women flock to volunteer. Recruiting centres opened in London, and in every town and village. The women enrolled for four years—which means that the earliest members have done one-and-a-half days wish—and they undertook to attend a minimum of ten drills a year and to go into camp for not less than eight days in alternate years.

A fortnight later I saw the first A.T.S. assistants march into town clothes and high-heeled shoes, being drilled by Grenadier Guards sergeants in the barrack square of the Duke of York's headquarters in Chelsea.

Earnestly, self-consciously, typists and shop assistants marched and formed threes in territorial drill belts to them for an hour in the evening. They had no uniforms, they got no pay. But they were eager and keen. I drilled one night with a company attached to the famous Queens. The colonel spoke to the girls, praised their work, told them briefly about the military history of the regiment and welcomed them into it. So the foundations of pride and loyalty were laid.

Goodwill Stuns.

Goodwill, quick to see the importance of this new development, poked fun at the women in his Berlin Angrif" — under the heading "Hauch on the seam, of your breeches. Miss Maud."

There were people in this country too, who smiled at the sight of women drilling and marching and calling their officers "Ma'am."

But the women took this summer, when the crack A.T.S. platoon gave a full-dress drill display at Aldershot, which amazed the guardsmen with its efficiency.

In April, just six months after the first recruits enrolled, they began to get their "drab" uniform. (Storm of abuse for these unsuitable garments since last-ford.) That summer they held their first camps. They were flooded out, but they stuck it. The Duke of Kent, Miss Jean Gwynne-Vaughan, veteran W.A.A.C. leader, was appointed Director A.T.S.

A new war. And within a day or two these women had left their civilian jobs and were becoming soldiers in the full sense of the word.

But the A.T.S. marched on.

In September, their second birthday, the A.T.S. were still only 30,000 strong, announced Mr. Churchill, to their surprise and criticisms.

Eighty-eight officers were dismissed to make way for younger, better qualified women.

But by the following June the Army was "thinking in terms of six figures for the A.T.S." Recruiting was at the rate of 10,000 a month. In the last half of 1941 the service practically doubled its strength.

Mixed Batteries.

In July that year the first mixed ack-ack battery went into training. Expansion became urgent. Every A.T.S. girl was needed for the fighting. Forty-two employments were now open to women in the Army.

High spot of A.T.S. history was the 1st July, 1941. That day the A.T.S. became one of the armed forces of the Crown, subject to "King's Regs." Officers received the King's Commission and the army pips instead of their own insignificant stars. Auxiliaries were called "privates" and "section-leaders" became "corporals" and "section-leaders." A month later, retiring under the new Chief Controller Dame Gwynne-Vaughan, her pioneer work done, handed over the command to Chief Controller Jean Knox.

In March this year the first British women ever to be conscripted joined the A.T.S.

Conscription, however, did not halt the A.T.S. in their recruiting drive. The aim for each week's intake of "rookies" was, and still is, a half-and-half mixture of volunteers and "conscripts."

The A.T.S. is over its teething troubles now. Conditions are better. Uniform is smarter. Promotion is quicker. There is even a little more pay. The service is crammed with girls proud of the searching scrutiny of the Markham Committee.

And now the four-year-old A.T.S. has big ideas about a birthday present. It wants YOU.

It has this offer in return—proud and honourable service; the assurance that this is the best way you can aid your country and the cause of freedom in this hour of peril.

GIVE THE A.T.S. A BIRTHDAY PRESENT

STORY OF FOUR YEARS OF ACHIEVEMENT

By EVELYN IRONS

Sunday, 27th September, was a proud day for the A.T.S. For then it was four years old.

All over the country, in barracks and camps and on lonely ack-ack gun-sites, the girls in khaki celebrated. Quietly, proudly. The astounding growth of this vast army of women—now the biggest in the world —is one of the marvels of the war.

When they were mobilised in September, 1939, there were only 17,000 of them. Truly domestic duties! It was the idea then. They could serve as clerks, cooks, drivers, orderlies or storewomen.

To-day, instead of five different trades, over 60 are open to them. Here are some of the latest—armourer, carpenter and joiner, experimental gunnery assistant, fitter, motor mechanic, predictor operator, ack-ack guns drive Nazi raiders from the sky, battle-dressed, steel helmeted A.T.S. girls do everything but the actual firing. One of them, Pte. Norah Caveney, died at her gun in April—the first A.T.S. to be killed in action. Some of them serve abroad. In the Middle East. In Palestine.

I am not allowed to tell you the present numbers of the A.T.S. The enemy would be interested in this military secret. But at the beginning of this year they passed their first hundred thousand. At that time the aim was 200,000 by June. Recruiting since then has been enormously increased.

FREEDOM OF TASTE

DEMOCRACY OR PEDANTOCRACY?

By DR. ERNEST BARKER

There is a connection—which at first sight may seem to be curious, but on reflection is seen to be natural, and even fundamental—between aesthetics and politics.

Authoritarianism in aesthetics (or, in other words, a belief in the right of superior taste to control the theatre, literature, and art generally) goes naturally with authoritarianism in politics; and similarly the principle of what may be called "aesthetic democracy" (which means the right and capacity of the ordinary man to judge for himself in matters of art) has a natural connection with the principle of political democracy. The connection may be seen—at any rate it was then that it was first observed by the writer—in the philosophy of Plato and Aristotle.

Plato was a philosophic "pedantocrat." He may use a word coined by John Stuart Mill and used by John Morley. He believed in the government of the expert who had mastered, and proceeded to impose on the people—that is, the crass—the principles assembled in the theatre, to sit in judgment on drama and music—and democracy in politics. In art, as in politics, he held that the wise must judge, and proceed to impose their judgment; the finest music is that which delights the best man, the properly educated.

This is the argument advanced in Plato's "Laws"; and it is controverted in Aristotle's "Politics." Aristotle was not a pedantocrat, on the contrary he had a belief—which is curiously like our English belief and the practice in which it implies—in the judgment of the ordinary man. He expresses this belief in a notable passage of the "Politics," where he is defending the right of the people at large to a voice in politics. "The many," he says, "when they come together, are very likely be better than the few good, if regarded not individually but collectively."

This is a political argument; but he proceeds at once to buttress it by an esthetic argument. "Hence the judgment of the multitude is better than that of any individual." There is a profound wisdom in those last words. It is indeed true that the Aristotle to trust the general judgment of ordinary men, and to trust it alike, and for the same reason, in politics and in art. The cause of "theatrocracy" and the cause of democracy stand and fall together.

The Pundits or the Many ?

The argument here advanced may appear academic and abstract. But it touches issues of lively and even temporary importance. It touches, for example, our notions of national painting and our notions of national poetry. Should painters and poets be judged by pundits and guided by pundits, and should they conform to the delectation of pundits, "the best men, the properly educated"? Or they to be judged and guided by the many, and should they produce their works for the general delectation of the nation? There is a great enough question; and on its solution depends the solution of our national painting and the fate of our national poetry. It would seem to many of us that poets are nowadays writing for coteries of a few men of taste. Is not the right way of writing in a democratic State? Is it not a way which is false to the character of democracy, and also (and thereby) to the standards of true esthetics, which are linked with the standards of democracy?

But there is a simpler issue which is raised by our general argument. This is the issue of the freedom of the press—a freedom threatened by esthetic authoritarians as well as (and perhaps even more than) by political authoritarianism. "The people read such poor stuff," one is told; "they ought to be guided and controlled in their reading." In a chapter which he wrote recently, the writer of this article remarked that the argument against much of modern journalism was that, as professing to give the people what the people wants, it gives the people something which it thinks the people wants, and something lower than what the people actually wants. He proceeded to add that "the cure is for the people to cure itself, as the taste of the people asserts its true nature."

A friendly critic objected to the argument. He contended that there was "big money invested in sensation and filth, and that it was this type of paper that one saw men and women reading most frequently. He asked whether there was not an urgent need for education in the sphere of taste, and he doubted whether the taste of the people would assert its true nature unaided. His contention, his question, his doubt, are natural. But to believe that "education in the sphere of taste" is still another name for "pedantocracy," and this pedantocracy however well-intentioned is despotism—despotism in matters of the mind, even more than there should be of compulsion.

A False Conception.

It is perfectly true that poor and nauseous stuff has been served up, and is still being served up, to the people. But this is the fault of the servers rather than that of the people. And it is with the people—and only with the people—that the cure of this fault must rest. They can be trusted. They must be trusted, for they are the only basis for itself, and to choose between good and bad. The wisdom of its choice grows as popular education spreads—not only in school, but also in popular and adult movements for the cultivation of taste in music and drama.

And anyhow the worst of all bureaucracies would be a bureaucracy of taste—and the worst of all pedantocracies would be a pedantocracy of taste. For pedantocracy is a false conception of the spirit never so muddily: it must not be cured that way. That way there lies a false conception and a false operation of esthetic judgment, which is finally, and in the last resort, the enjoyment of the many. That way there also lies a denial of the basis of democracy, which is firmly set, and must be firmly set, on the fundamental fact that if some appreciate one part, and others another, only "all together can appreciate all."

BOWLS

RED CROSS COMPETITION

Some surprising results were produced at Bowl Park, Margate, when 48 players took part in a bowls drive in conjunction with the Margate Bowling Club in aid of Red Cross Funds. The drive very successful from a financial point of view and with the donations received from bowlers and friends a total of £38 5s. 6d. has been handed over to the fund.

H. J. Bayley, H. Street, H. Howard and T. Dalton (skip) were the winners, and second prize went to W. Fudge, G. Barnes, A. Bradley and S. Waldey (skip), who defeated Mrs. King, A. E. Coleman, F. E. Amos and R. Thurston (skip). In the event of a tie, Mr. J. Garraway and J. Gooderham (skip) won the sealed number game.

The Chief Constable (Mr. W. Palmer) presented the prizes and Mr. Percy Bowles, chairman of the club, Mr. Percy Snow, hon. treasurer of the Kent County Bowling Association.

Results in the club's acres competition H. Foster, A. Kennard and R. Perrett (Ramsgate) defeated the trio of H. Sandwell, E. E. Amos and C. Arrowsmith (skip) by 21 shots to 17. Other scores: Mrs. King, B. N. Wells and S. H. King 21, J. Lattimore and B. Ovenden beat C. J. Amos and J. Rhodes 21—17 in the 2nd round, and Lattimore, Ovenden and Rhodes defeated H. Sandwell and A. J. Munday 19—18 in the semi-final.

The winners of the season will be presented after a cigarette match on Monday and a collection will be taken on behalf of the Margate Prisoners of War Fund.

guard against blight in clamp or pie

Potatoes stored in clamps are a vital part of the national food reserve. If you lift tubers while blight is on the haulm you run the risk of them rotting in the clamps. You can stop this by taking care at lifting time.

you can

BURN OFF WITH ACID OR CUT OFF THE TOPS 10 DAYS BEFORE YOU LIFT On large fields contract spraying with sulphuric acid is best. On small fields and allotments, tops can be cut by hand.

or

DELAY LIFTING UNTIL THE TOPS HAVE BEEN QUITE DEAD FOR 10 DAYS This is the easiest way to keep blight out of the clamps. But it is not recommended if there is danger from wireworms, slugs or frost, or if the weather is likely to be bad for lifting.

or

LIFT ONLY ON FINE DAYS WHEN THE TUBERS WILL DRY QUICKLY If a crop with blight on the haulm must be lifted before the tops are all dead, wait for good weather. Blight infects wet tubers easily.

Clamp sound tubers only. Collect all blighted potatoes from the field and near the clamp. Boil these at once for stock feeding or for silage.

RAMSGATE HORTICULTURAL SHOW

Lord Woolton's eyes would have gleamed had he entered St. Lawrence Parish Hall on Thursday.

Arranged tastefully on long tables were miniature mountains of potatoes, onions, beetroot, tomatoes, all kinds of fruit, huge marrows and succulent black grapes.

In peace-time the Ramsgate and District Horticultural Society were noted for their splendid annual shows held in High-street Hall, and as it is just another of those little unfortunate results of war-time that these displays cannot now be held. Thursday's show was in no way a revival of the popular annual feature but a modest and successful attempt to revive interest in the organisation's activities at a time when garden produce is of more importance than ever before.

The season has not been a particularly good one for vegetables and fruit. A very cold start did not augur well for them and caterpillars have been particularly troublesome on the greenstuff, while our old enemy, the wasp, has been feeding on the pears, and maggots have done their worst with the apples.

Yet, in spite of all this, the exhibitors were able to show produce of very good quality and Mr. W. J. Sparkes, one of the judges, told our representative that they came well up to standard. The sight of such a fine collection was a reward for the labours of Mr. J. E. L. Massey, the energetic secretary of the society, and Mr. H. Tucker, the chairman, who, in organising it, were assisted by a willing band of committee members, both men and women.

Plucky Venture.

The show was opened by Alderman T. W. Mockridge, chairman of the Parks and Gardens Committee of Ramsgate Council, who said the society were very plucky to have embarked on such a venture. He congratulated them on a wonderful display and paid tribute to the work of Mr. Massey, Mr. G. Cullen and Mr. J. A. Taylor as co-opted members of the Allotments Sub-Committee of the Council. "They give practical help at our meetings," he said, "because they have a great knowledge of growing fruit and vegetables."

He had the opinion of a high authority that Ramsgate had done remarkably well in "obeying," or responding to the Government's wish for people to grow more food and he could tell them that the allotments and private kitchen gardens in the district numbered over 1,800. They could not tell how long the war would last—it might be some years yet—and it was good to know that people were growing more produce so that there would be no shortage of good food.

In addition to Mr. Sparkes, the judges were Mr. H. Ball (Broadstairs) and Mr. W. Beaney (Margate).

RETAINING ITS IDENTITY

TRANSFER OF ST. GEORGE'S BOYS' SCHOOL

The report of the Education (General Purposes) Committee, meeting of Ramsgate Education Committee, presented at a meeting of the Education Committee on Wednesday, stated that the committee had considered the reports of the chairman of St. George's School managers (Councillor the Rev. C. R. Farnsworth) and the vice-chairman (Councillor the Rev. Harvourt Samuel) following their visit to Stafford to discuss with officers of the Staffordshire Education Committee the proposals for the alternative accommodation for St. George's Boys' School in the reception area.

The committee stated the report, approved of the transfer of the school at a later date to Stafford-street Senior Boys' School. The working arrangements will enable the school to retain its identity and will be similar to those which have operated in the case of St. George's Girls' School at Stafford Riverways Senior School.

HOW RAMSGATE IS SAVING

During the last three months there has been a considerable increase in the use of the Ramsgate Savings Centre in King-street, and now that it has been made possible to open the centre every day it is hoped that all savers will make the fullest use of its facilities.

The centre has been open just over a year, since July, 1941, and during that time 13 months, excluding Warship Week in March, there was a turnover of £8,041. Monthly turnovers ranged from £269 to £1,084, the latter record figure being reached in October last year. Over the whole period the average weekly business has been in the neighbourhood of £100, but during July and August this was increased by nearly a third. As the advantages of the centre become more widely known to the general public it is confidently anticipated that the average will be further raised.

IN THE PRISON CAMPS

Lady Carson addressed about 30 next-of-kin of prisoners of war and their friends at St. George's Parish Hall, Ramsgate, on Thursday.

The meeting was arranged in connection with the Prisoners of War Department of the Red Cross and St. John War Organisation and the Vicar of Ramsgate (the Rev. C. R. Farnsworth) presided.

The W.V.S. was represented by Mrs. Blinko, Mrs. Curtis, Nurse Howells and Mrs. Morgan.

Lady Carson spoke of the life in the prison camps and showed her audience some interesting photographs.

The Vicar introduced Mrs. Farnsworth, who is head of the organisation for Ramsgate, and Mrs. Jones, the local secretary of the Prisoners of War Department, and a vote of thanks to Lady Carson was proposed by Mrs. Blinko.

A similar meeting is to be held at St. George's Parish Hall on 22nd October.

NOT SAFE IN REMAND HOME

BOY'S FIFTH ESCAPE

TO BE DETAINED IN PRISON

Having accomplished his fifth escape from a remand home, a 16-year-old Ramsgate boy who, as reported last week, admitted having been drunk and disorderly, again appeared before the magistrates at Ramsgate juvenile court on Thursday.

The police made application, under the Children and Young Persons' Act, that the order made on Monday committing him to be detained at a remand home should be varied, on the grounds that he was of such an unruly character that he could not safely be detained at the home, and that he should be committed to prison.

Acting Chief Inspr. Hicks said that having been taken back to the remand home on Monday the boy escaped at nine o'clock the following morning. He had escaped from the home four times previously.

"The superintendent informs us that his behaviour is having such a bad effect upon the other boys that it is impossible to keep him in detention. Before leaving he stole 30s., the property of one of the masters. Since his return to Ramsgate he has broken into a house and stolen the pair of trousers he is now wearing. It is obvious he cannot properly be detained in a remand home. I make application that he be detained in prison at Maidstone," said the acting chief inspector.

The Clerk (Mr. E. A. Knight): You have given as much trouble as you possibly could.

The boy: I have not given much trouble up there.

The Chairman (Mr. H. J. Perry) said the boy would be remanded to Maidstone prison until he could be taken to an approved school.

"I have nothing to add to what I said on Monday," continued Mr. Perry. "You are a thoroughly bad lot."

On hearing the decision of the bench the boy's mother burst into tears.

CHILDREN COME BACK

TWICE AS MANY IN RAMSGATE AS IN STAFFORD

There are twice as many children on the roll of Ramsgate schools as there are Ramsgate children in the official reception area in Staffordshire.

On Friday the number on the roll at Ramsgate was 1,494 and the number of Ramsgate elementary school children in Stafford-shire was 749.

Children have been returning to Ramsgate at the rate of about 20 a week but less than 50 per cent. of this number are from the official reception area. They are returning from all parts of the country to which they were evacuated by their parents.

At one time the number of elementary Ramsgate "evacuees" in Staffordshire was over 2,500. This number, apart from those who have returned to Ramsgate, has been reduced by children leaving school and children leaving the official reception area to join their parents in other parts of the country.

For the week ended 17th April—the first week of the summer term—the number of children on the roll at Ramsgate schools was 1,139. By 31st July the number had risen to 1,368.

When the present term began on 1st September the number was 1,447 and during the first fortnight increased to 1,494.

As the children return, teachers are brought back from the reception area to meet the position at Ramsgate.

By an overwhelming majority they decided not to sound the siren at all hours of the night and there is to be a public meeting to explain more fully to the inhabitants the circumstances surrounding the question.

POLICE OUTING

The annual outings of Ramsgate police force took place on Tuesday and Thursday. On the first day the party numbered about 50, including Chief Constable Buss, Inspr. Ross, Sgts. Wilson and Cox and one half of the force. The chairman of the Watch Committee (Alderman Sykes), Councillors Whales and Edwards, Mr. Hubbard (Town Clerk) and Messrs. J. J. Roach, J. Proctor, H. Thornton, H. Bowman, W. Millard and J. Neale were also present. The party travelled by the South-Eastern Railway to Maidstone, two comfortable saloons having been provided for their use by the stationmaster, Mr. Trowbridge. Lunch was served in the Rose and Crown, Alderman Sykes taking the chair. When the second contingent travelled to Maidstone on Thursday Alderman Sykes presented Mr. Buss with a silver cruet-stand on behalf of visitors in recognition of the able manner in which he had discharged his onerous duties for so many years.

HAINE HOSPITAL

The infection hospital to be erected by the Thanet sanitary authorities in place of the inadequate buildings at Northwood will be immediately outside the Ramsgate district. The site is in an isolated part known as the World's Worth and extends to nearly 6½ acres. It is believed that the total cost of the land and buildings will be in the neighbourhood of £10,000.

DISAPPEARED FROM BOAT

A young man visiting Margate hired a boat on Wednesday afternoon and rowed out of the harbour into the bay and spoke to visitors in receding distance. They are returning from all parts of the country to which they were evacuated by their parents.

MARGATE'S MAYOR ELECT

UNANIMOUS CHOICE OF COUNCILLOR F. J. CORNFORD

Councillor Frederick James Cornford will succeed Alderman G. P. Hoare as Mayor of Margate on 9th November.

The choice was made at a private meeting of the Town Council on Wednesday. Councillor Cornford was the only nomination and the voting was unanimous.

Councillor Cornford would probably have been Mayor two years ago but ill-health prevented him from letting his name go forward.

A native of Birchington, Councillor Cornford is 60 years of age. He is a son of the late Mr. J. Cornford, who was at one time in charge of Quex Park Gardens, Birchington, and afterwards in business in the town as a nurseryman.

After attending Birchington Church School and Margate Commercial School, Councillor Cornford was articled to Mr. J. Reeve, the Margate architect, and then spent some years in London. During this time he was associated with the building of the original Strand Palace Hotel. Returning to Thanet in 1910, he opened up practice at Westgate.

Councillor Cornford is a Licentiate of the Royal Institute of British Architects, a Member of the Institute of Structural Engineers, and a Fellow of the Faculty of Architects.

Former Council Clerk.

Councillor Cornford's interest in local government goes back to before the war. He served for three terms as a member of Westgate Parish Council between 1913 and 1935, when Westgate was incorporated with Margate. For 20 years he was Clerk to Birchington Parish Council and he held the posts of assistant overseer at Birchington, overseer at Westgate and he was a member of the Joint Burial Board, of which he was chairman in 1930.

In the last war Councillor Cornford enlisted in the Artists Rifles. He was afterwards commissioned in the Royal Garrison Artillery but was invalided out owing to a serious illness.

Councillor Cornford has been a representative of Westgate on Margate Town Council since the incorporation in 1935. He has been vice-chairman of several committees and chairman of the Parks Committee for four years. He is keenly interested in education, being vice-chairman of the Education Committee. He is a foundation manager of Westgate Church School and a manager of Birchington Church School.

Councillor Cornford passed through the chair of Westgate Chamber of Commerce and in 1939 was president of the East Kent Federation of Chambers of Commerce.

Councillor Cornford, the Mayoress-elect, was born in Margate, a daughter of the late Mr. F. A. Lilley. She is head of the firm of Beresford and Cornford, estate agents, of Westgate and Birchington, and is a Fellow of the Association of Landed Property Agents.

Mothers to Blame

RECEIVED ARTICLES TAKEN BY THEIR CHILDREN

Eleven sheets, five towels and two dusters were exhibited in a case at Ramsgate county juvenile court on Tuesday.

Three St. Nicholas-at-Wade girls, aged 8, 9 and 11 years, the latter two sisters, were alleged to have stolen the articles from a hospital between 31st July and 20th August, and at Ramsgate county police court later in the morning the two mothers of the children were charged with receiving some of them, knowing them to have been stolen.

The girls all admitted the offences and Mr. R. R. G. Weale, who prosecuted, outlined the circumstances of the cases. A check of the stores at the hospital, he said, revealed that the articles were missing and the homes of the children were later visited. The youngest girl made a statement in which she described how, accompanied by the other children, she put her hand through a window and removed some of the articles.

The children were bound over for two years in the sum of £2 each.

Both the mothers pleaded guilty to the receiving charges in respect of seven sheets, three towels and two dusters, and Mr. Weale said they had made statements to the police in which they said the children brought the articles home and were told by them to return them. They had intended to do so.

Mr. Weale said the fact that if there were no receivers there would be no stealers was very true in this case for the children had stolen articles which were no earthly use to them but were useful to their parents. Thanks to the assiduity of the police all the articles had been recovered. The mothers had told the children they would have to take the articles back but it was the duty of the mothers to have returned them.

Addressing the women, the Chairman (Mr. W. Booth Reeve) said it was a pity they did not take more energetic steps to return the articles. "If it ever happens again," he said, "you may be summoned."

Defendants were bound over for two years in the sum of £5 each. A charge preferred against the other of one of the defendants for receiving four sheets and two towels was adjourned sine die owing to her illness.

FILLING WINTER'S VICTORY CHURNS

Britain is drinking 25 per cent. more fresh milk than ever before. Her dairy farmers, like all farmers, have responded well to the nation's call for increased output to meet its vital needs, to maintain the people's health and create the ploughing up of six million acres of grassland and the loss of several million tons of livestock feeding stuffs for which shipping cannot be spared, dairy farmers produced in the first six months of the year over 10 million gallons more milk than they did on the average in the three pre-war years, and 13 million gallons more than last year.

The first league tables in the "Victory Churn Contest" showed that, at the end of June, 40 of the 61 counties in England and Wales had increased their milk output compared with a year ago. Of the rest seven had not fallen behind and only six had a lower output.

All this is excellent. But summer milk is not enough. It is what the nation gets this winter—next winter and the winter after that—that matters. In parliament, the Minister of Agriculture was asked whether he was satisfied that the anxiety felt as to the possibility that this year's record summer milk production has been obtained at the cost of winter milk. Mr. Hudson was glad to be able to say that the suggestion appeared to be ill-founded. He pointed out that this summer's increased production had been secured from some 50,000 fewer cows in milk than there were during the corresponding period last year. On the other hand, said the Minister, the returns indicated a sizable increase in the number of cows and heifers due to calve this autumn—welcome evidence that many dairy farmers had responded to the Government's wishes and made preparations for increasing winter production. Given a reasonable winter, Mr. Hudson thought we stood a reasonable chance of getting increased production.

But many more farmers must turn from summer to winter dairying if the nation is to be assured of its vital milk in future winters. And now is the time to plan. "Too late" has been the greatest single cause of farming failures in the past. Before the war "too late" only affected the farmer; in this hour of the country's peril one starts "too late" affects the whole nation.

The Ministry of Agriculture leaflet "Make Sure of Winter Milk," which the farmer can get from his War Agricultural Executive Committee, outlines the plan. Briefly, it is for more autumn calvings—heifers to be "tupped" in August and November; proper and economical winter feeding—balanced rations to be fed to each cow according to yield; economy in rearing calves, using suitable milk substitutes, such as National Calf Starter; autumn and spring cropping to be so planned now as to provide the extra feeding stuffs needed for more autumn and winter calves.

The dairy farmer with a problem should get advice now from his War Committee and make a point of attending any local milk production demonstration.

REGAINED FREEDOM

MARGATE SOLDIER WHO FOILED ROMMEL

An amazing story of a former Margate grocer's assistant who was taken prisoner by the Germans but regained his freedom has been told by one of Reuter's correspondents with the 8th Army on the El Alamein front.

During an Allied night thrust against Rommel's flank in the first stage of a recent panzer withdrawal, Sgt. Frank Henry John Baker, The Buffs, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Baker, of 45 Orchard-road, Margate, found himself with 11 other men from his section occupying an abandoned German trench.

"The Jerries discovered several trenches occupied by our company and started to shell them," Sgt. Baker told Reuter.

"We popped away at their gun position with Brens and rifles and were enjoying ourselves. Then came our turn.

"The Jerries rushed in instead of shelling us and we had to surrender.

"An enemy officer tried to make us understand that he wanted us to go forward on some mission.

"They shoved a towel into my hands, and it became clear that they wanted me to go through their lines to some Maoris still worrying them and call on them to surrender or be blasted out by shellfire.

"I went along and they sent one or two shots after me to make sure I went in the right direction. When I approached the Maoris they thought I was an Italian and that this was an enemy ruse, but I managed to make them understand I was English and they took me to their commanding officer.

"The Maoris just grinned when they learnt about my mission. I said 'Well, do I go back or do I stay with you?'

"I stayed, and although the Jerries opened up with all they had when they saw I was not returning, the New Zealanders stuck there, giving it back until they received the order to withdraw."

Difficulties of Administration

COUNCIL STAFF OFFICE HOURS

The question of office hours and annual leave of the clerical, administrative and clerical staffs was considered at a recent meeting of the Finance and General Purposes Committee of Ramsgate Town Council.

The Minister of Labour and National Service suggested that more personnel might be released for industry and the fighting forces if longer hours were worked by clerical staffs generally throughout the country.

The committee came to the conclusion that no further releases could be effected by working the staff for longer hours.

The report of the committee, to be presented at a meeting of the Town Council on Thursday, states that the Southern Home Counties Provincial Council for the Professional, Technical, Administrative and Clerical Services of Local Authorities recommended that if increased hours were agreed upon overtime at plain rates of salary should be paid between 39 and 46 hours per week and at one and a quarter plain time rates between 46 and 52 hours per week.

The Ministry emphasised that increases of hours of work could only asked for and indeed was only justified if the volume of work to be done warranted the increase and pointed out that it would be particularly undesirable for example in the case of a local office to keep the staff at the place of business for longer hours except where this could result in a saving in number of staff being able to cope with the same amount of business.

No Economy.

The committee were informed that the heads of departments had conferred on the matter and that they were unanimously of the opinion of staffs for the armed forces had already been effected to such an extent that no further releases could be made by working the staff (now including numbers of temporary employees) for longer hours.

Difficulty in administration was already being experienced in many directions caused by the calling up of trained administrative and technical staffs who could not be effectively replaced.

Work to be carried out by temporary and junior members of the staff often operated in the work of the senior administrative staff and if this senior staff was depleted the difficulty would be overcome, by keeping the whole of the office staff for longer hours.

The recognised office hours," states the report, "are 9.15 a.m. to 5.15 p.m., and 9 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. on Saturdays but it is the practice for overtime to be worked as occasion demands, and this is a normal arrangement. In exceptional circumstances the Council from time to time grant payment for overtime.

"Attendance on Sundays vary from four weeks in the case of clerical staffs to two weeks in the case of the staffs that since the outbreak of war chief officers and senior staff have voluntarily limited themselves to one week-end in two weeks holiday except in one or two cases where consideration of health has justified a longer period.

"Comparatively few applications for deferment have been made whereby staffs of ages may have been called up under the Military Service Acts and already 47 of the administrative staff have joined the forces and several more will join in the near future."

The committee recommend that no alteration be made in the present arrangements.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

MRS. STOKES' 104TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Clarissa Stokes, of 10 Dundonald-road, Ramsgate, spent a busy time opening letters and telegrams on Sunday morning.

Her "fan mail" marked the 104th anniversary of her birthday and when she had read them and inspected her numerous presents from admiring friends and friends she received two distinguished visitors—the Mayor and Mayoress (Alderman and Mrs. A. B. C. Kempe). In a charming manner she greeted them in a room beautifully decorated with flowers.

Despite her great age, Mrs. Stokes still retains her faculties, apart from the fact that she is slightly—and only slightly—hard of hearing. The passage of years has had little effect on her amazing energy and there is nothing she enjoys more than her strolls into Ellington Park.

Mrs. Stokes formerly lived at 28 Dundonald-road, but she now resides with Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons at No. 10. Very independent, she still insists on doing most of her own work and takes great pride in the tidiness of her bedroom.

Although she lives only a few yards from one of the funnel entrances, Mrs. Stokes is not concerned about air raid sirens and never troubles to take shelter. If the siren sounds at night she remains in her bed.

When Mrs. Stokes celebrated her 103rd birthday last year she received a telegram of congratulation from the King and Queen.

Since the very first issue in 1859 Mrs. Stokes has been a reader of the ADVERTISER & ECHO and she still reads to-day with the aid of a magnifying glass.

Until 13 years ago she assisted in the operation of the Kentish Belle Vue Aerated Bread Company, which she and her thought nothing of walking as far as Margate to distribute trucks.

ODEON TALENT

"DISCOVERIES" ON THE STAGE

Odeon patrons were again treated to a first-class stage show in addition to the usual screen programme on Friday.

The star turn was Dvr. Rawkins, R.A.S.C., a talented singer, who was given such a great ovation that he is being booked for a repeat performance. His singing of "I'll Walk Beside You" and "When Irish eyes are smiling" was delightful and, led by his bright personality, the audience joined heartily in the choruses.

Pte. Surtees and Pte. Lyons, two of the Odeon's "discoveries," put on the former giving a piano selection and the latter accompanying himself in songs.

Two child entertainers received a good hand-clap. Hilda Richards, who has come to be known as Margate's "Little Shirley Temple," put over songs made famous by the young film star, and 14-year-old Jean Willis, making her very first appearance in public, sang two songs and led community singing.

Mr. G. F. Webster, of Margate, revealed himself as a second Billy Bennett and another young popular item was a ukulele selection by Mr. A. J. Mercer, tenor, also of Margate.

Patrons will be sorry to know that it was the last appearance—for some time at any rate—of Mr. Reginald Taney, who has been called to the military service. Mr. Taney has accompanied most of the artistes who have appeared recently at the Odeon and given some enjoyable piano solos.

Next Friday's stage show promises to be a high performance for it is being given by the concert party and band of "D" Division, N.F.S., by kind permission of the officers. Any kind performance of new shows are going well ahead.

NEWS OF THANET MEN AND WOMEN

Mr. W. Foad, of 18 Upper Dumpton Park-road, Ramsgate, is justly proud of the fact that he has six sons serving in this war. All of them are in The Buffs, all are old boys of Hereson School, and two are now prisoners of war. Pte. William Foad, aged 29, was with the 2nd Battalion during the retreat towards Dunkirk. He was wounded and was captured and is now in Germany. His brother, Cpl. Geoffrey Foad, was with him in the same battalion over a long distance but finally they were forced to part after a narrow escape from a bomb. He entered the front of a house while they left through the back of the building. Thirty-one years of age, Geoffrey returned safely from Dunkirk and he is now in Egypt. Jack, their 27-year-old brother who was serving with the 1st Battalion, was captured in the Middle East over a year ago and is a prisoner in German hands. He was serving with the regular Army in peace-time and since going to this seven years ago has not seen his home. Before the war he was sent to Palestine during the riots. L/Cpl. Fred Foad, aged 24, was a Carrier in peace-time and was called up at the outbreak of war. He served in France, came back to England soon after the capitulation, and is now with the 8th Battalion in Malta, where his chief grouse is the absence of beer. Eldest of the brothers, Pte. Albert Foad, aged 37, is in the Pioneer Corps and has just spent a leave in Ramsgate, while Dvr. Harry Foad, of the R.A.S.C., has arrived in the Middle East.

The hospitality extended by a South African family to Harry Foad is just another example of the way in which our boys are being entertained overseas. His father has received a letter from Mr. Robert Gibson, of Cape Town, saying that he has entertained Harry to dinner three times during his short stay in Cape Town. "I think he and his pals enjoyed themselves," says Mr. Gibson, "and as the other was not too well I left them they probably found it better than wandering about the town. Harry Foad is very musically and try to take some home with me. We have our own son away in the Navy. He has been about 12 months in British and northern waters and, strange to say, he has been betrieded to a Kentish people living at Beckenham. So by having your son we are just repaying Kentish hospitality." Mr. Gibson recently sent a snap of Harry and his pals with the family, says the Ramsgate man is looking well and had quite an uneventful trip out.

Mr. H. Tucker, of 107 Ellington-road, Ramsgate, chairman of the Ramsgate and District Horticultural Society, has two sons serving in the Middle East. After being in the R.N.V.R. for four years, he, who is 26 years of age, is now back at a base in Egypt. He has previously served in Malta and Crete. His 23-year-old brother, L/Cpl. Robert Tucker, is with the Army Pay Corps in Palestine and recently met up with the sight of sand he wouldn't mind seeing Ramsgate sands again. He, too, is an enjoyable seven-days' leave in Haifa.

You like to have news from your sons and daughters in the forces—so do we. We invite you to pass on their stories to us so that their friends may know how they are getting along.

: : : : :

After volunteering for the R.A.F. three years ago, Sgt. Pilot Arthur James, Reginald Silk, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Silk, of Flete-road, Ingate, has called up and is now training in the Royal Armoured Corps. An old boy of Marston School, he was a lance-corporal in the Home Guard.

: : : : :

Sig. Cyril Shepherd, of Broadstairs, news of whom has already appeared in "On Service," is now attached to a cartilage operation while serving with the Royal Corps of Signals in India. He says there are very few mosquitoes and he is now able to play tennis and cricket again.

: : : : :

Albert Bridgeland and Ronald Patching, two of Margate's policemen recently called up, have completed their training as gunners in the Royal Artillery and are going on a course. William Tawse, another policeman who has joined the Royal Navy as artificer, has been appointed acting chief petty officer.

: : : : :

This week-end a member of the staff received an airgraph letter from a former colleague, Sgt. Dennis Addington, who is with the R.A.F. in the Middle East. Sgt. Addington, who was written two weeks previously, Sgt. Addington, who is a wireless operator-air gunner, said the flies were more nuisance than the war.

: : : : :

Sgt. Wilfred Sackett, R.A.F., formerly of our advertisement department, was on leave last week and gave us news of some of his fellow Old St. Lawrence boys. Pte. Dennis Claxton, who took part in the hunt for the Bismarck, is in Northern Ireland, and Gordon Claxton has recently been promoted Army Co-operation section of the R.A.F. Harry Lawford, not an Old St. Georgian, but well-known to Old Boys, is now in Canada. He is in the Royal Navy and recently married Miss Winnie Claxton, George's sister, in Hamilton, Ontario. Imagine. He has had four survivors' leaves since joining the service.

: : : : :

His friends at Ramsgate Rugby Football Club, with which he played before the war, will be pleased to know that Pte./Sgt. Allie Bates is now in this country from the Middle East. In a letter to Mr. A. J. Drayson, secretary of the club, Allie says: "Mrs. Bates and I are now together after nearly two years of separation. We had a glorious time in Egypt before the war, but I picked them up on the way home. The journey was quite uneventful." Wallie is now in the Midlands.

: : : : :

Sgt./Major John Brown, R.A., who is stationed in the South of England, is on leave in Ramsgate. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, now a prisoner of war in Germany, whose wife lives in High-street.

CAPT. M. C. C. DANIEL

DEATH OF RAMSGATE SOLICITOR

His many friends will regret to learn of the death, which occurred on Thursday, of Capt. Martin Charles Campbell Daniel, of Charlton Lodge, St. Mildred's-road, Ramsgate.

It will be recalled that Capt. Daniel was taken seriously ill in May while serving with the R.A.S.C. in the Middle East and was flown to England. He was admitted to St. George's Hospital and left there a short time ago to spend a few weeks with his father, Mr. Kenyon Daniel, of 15 Vale-square, Ramsgate, who is recovering after being at Lechlade, Gloucestershire. He returned to St. George's Hospital and was later transferred to the Royal Masonic Hospital, Ravenscourt, Park.

A partner in the firm of Messrs. K. and C. Daniel, solicitors, of Ellingham-street, Ramsgate, Capt. Daniel was 37 years of age and after being educated at Rugby and New College, Oxford, where he gained his B.A. in law, began his career at Ramsgate. He was admitted a solicitor in December, 1929, and was also for some time the youngest notary public in England. Capt. Daniel was a member of the fifth generation of a family who have practised law in Thanet, and the 150th anniversary of of the foundation of the firm is being celebrated this year.

His widow, formerly Miss Patricia M. Hayden, adopted daughter of Mrs. Deveson and the late Mr. S. Deveson, of Ramsgate, and two young children, to whom the deepest sympathy is extended.

Capt. Daniel will be greatly missed in Rotary circles for he had been a member of the Ramsgate Rotary Club since 1935 and was president in 1938-39. A very popular member, he had served on all the committees and represented the Ramsgate club at district conferences.

All-Round Sportsman.

A good all-round sportsman, Capt. Daniel was chiefly noted as a cricketer and for many years he was captain of the Broadstairs C.C. A capable batsman and bowler, he could be relied upon for useful work in the field also. At one time he was captain of the old Butterflies C.C. and was also a member of I Zingari, the M.C.C., the Free Foresters and Band of Brothers, a Kent county club.

Capt. Daniel was a member of the committee of the Kent County Cricket Club and he was responsible for bringing some county cricket to Broadstairs. While at Rugby, where he became a keen Association footballer, Daniel played cricket for the 1st XI for three years.

He was a member of both Royal St. George's and St. Augustine's Golf Clubs and also played hockey and squash.

Much interested in the welfare of the unemployed, Capt. Daniel played an important part in the founding of the Thanet Unemployed Men's Service and from its beginning in 1932 till the outbreak of war he was the secretary. He was also responsible for a recreational centre at the Assembly Rooms, High-street, which have since been converted into a canteen and are largely a result of his efforts. As hon. secretary of the Council he was responsible for the unfailing sense of humour lightened our work and made every meeting with him a pleasure. We all feel that we have lost a friend and an outstanding personality in our profession.

He always took a great interest in Ramsgate and in public work, and the town has lost by his early death a man who would, had he lived, have served it well. There is no one in Ramsgate who will not deplore his loss and sympathise with his family, so well known and so long and honourably associated with the town.

Court Tributes.

Tributes to the memory of Capt. Daniel were paid at Ramsgate police court on Monday.

The Chairman (Mr. H. J. Perry) said that on behalf of the bench he wished to express the extreme regret with which they heard of the passing of Mr. Daniel. He was well respected as a solicitor practising at the court. There was something in Mr. Charles Daniel that was very attractive. He was a thorough man. The more one knew him the more one respected him and the bench wished to express their sincere sympathy to Mrs. and Mr. Kenyon Daniel in the loss of their son.

It was within the knowledge of everyone, said Mr. Perry, that as time went on Mr. Daniel would have become the head of his firm. Now he had gone. Not only to his father and mother did they wish to express their sympathy but also to his widow and two children.

Mr. C. H. Edwards, on behalf of the solicitors practising at the court, said he only regretted the untimely end of Mr. Daniel. He spoke with great feeling for he had the privilege of being a very personal friend. The solicitors practising in Thanet looked on Mr. Daniel as a friend.

He was a very kind and honourable man, said Mr. Edwards. "His word was always absolutely as good as a written contract. The profession and the town had lost a man in his early life who had already made a great mark and who, I am sure, had in him the capacity to have taken an increasing part in the life of the town."

The Chief Constable (Mr. S. F. Butler), on behalf of the police, recalling that Mr. Daniel had been an inspector in the Special Constabulary, said he had been held in the highest esteem both by the regulars and the specials. They also came into close contact with him in sporting activities and they greatly deplored the passing of one so young.

Similar sentiments were also expressed by Mr. E. J. Knight, Magistrates' Clerk on behalf of the court officials.

Mr. Daniel was a man of great charm of manner, said Mr. Knight. He was scrupulously fair in all his advocacy in that and other courts and in addition had an extensive knowledge of the practise of law. He had looked forward to the time when they would welcome back Mr. Daniel with his cheery, charming manner.

The court stood for a few moments in silent tribute.

Upright and Fair.

The Editor has received from solicitors practising in Ramsgate the following tribute to Capt. Daniel.

Sir,—We, the undersigned solicitors practising in Ramsgate, desire to express our deep regret and sorrow at the untimely death of Charles Daniel, one of the youngest members of our profession. He was a man liked, admired and respected by everyone he came in contact by no one more than by us who met him constantly and who learned his daily experience of his upright and fair a man and how able a lawyer he was, and how pleasant it was to work with him. His kindness and unfailing sense of humour lightened our work and made every meeting with him a pleasure. We all feel that we have lost a friend and an outstanding personality in our profession.

He always took a great interest in Ramsgate and in public work, and the town has lost by his early death a man who would, had he lived, have served it well. There is no one in Ramsgate who will not deplore his loss and sympathise with his family, so well known and so long and honourably associated with the town.

Don't forget the Grocer!

The old saying that memory is short is not entirely true. Or how could gratitude exist? For gratitude means remembered thoughtfulness, kind acts and fair play.

We are grateful to all our retail customers who for many years have helped us to build up the sales of our famous Yorkshire Relish. Distribution arrangements under the Government Sector Scheme now prevent us from dealing with retailers direct, but with a return to happier times, we hope to resume our former pleasant relations.
